Research Interest and Results

His research activities covers most fields of scientific-disciplinary sector of Physical Geography and Geomorphology: morphodynamics of alpine relief; geomorphological hazards and risks (slope instability, glacial dynamics), but especially: the study of geomorphological and geological heritage, in order to preserve the Geodiversity and to develop effective strategies for geoconservation and enhancement of Cultural Geoh heritage. He developed his own unique approach, by using innovative technologies for data collection and dissemination. He is/was PI on several research projects on Applied Geomorphology, Natural Hazards, Geodiversity and Cultural Geoh heritage (see next paragraph). He is author of more than 200 papers of scientific interest (see complete list in the attached ROL extended CV). Scientific Index (Google Scholar, 06/2020) H-index 21; Citation count 1417; i-10 index 45. ORCID <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-0008-3251>
